COLLECTIONS A SPECIALTY

MEOPERICULO.

BY SENATOR BENJ. SEWELL.

Some grateful friend has sent me a marked copy of the Lexington Leader, dated June 30th. It must have been sent from the Queen City of the Blue Grass, for in addressing me Campton was spelt "Camptone." The blue pencil marks called my attention to a certain paragraph written by Col. Duncan in which he states that Wolfe county has $300 00 worth of jackasses and 22 idiots. "Now I am in sympathy with Duncan's crusade against the boddlers and grafters of Lexington, and hope he succeed in landing them in the penitentiary, but, in order to do so, it is not necessary for him to ridicule the jackasses of Wolfe county when he can find the King of jackasses within his own hide. So, go ahead, Colonel, and give them the devil-the grafters. Our jackasses are four legged, your's are not, and have a perfect right to do a little braying without interruption on your part."

The mountain people of Kentucky have been much abused and slandered without a cause. They have been the target of misrepresentation by heartless and headless pencil prattlers for revenue only. With all their imperfections, the mountain people are honest, fearless, generous and true, having neither grafters nor boddlers in their ranks. In the mountains the door of the smokehouses, the corncribs and of the humble homes are left unlocked of nights with perfect safety, and thieves, burglars and highway robbers are characters that do not flourish in the mountains, and are not one-half as numerous as in the more favored parts of the State.

The mountain people are God's noblemen in truth and in deed. They are not shocked nor alarmed by the earthquakes of slander and villainy that originate in the "cracked brain" of irresponsible maligners and traducers of other sections. Level lands and waving blue grass do not make men; towering mountains and tangled peavines do not make men. Character is the thermometer that indicates his real worth as a man, and this he can have in one section the same as any other.

Better, brighter and happier days are ahead. A new era is being ushered in-one of good feeling. Turmoil, strife, factions, and discords and bitter feelings, in the past, have been the setback, not only of the mountains, but the whole state of Kentucky. Gradually this is disappearing, and a new sun can be seen in the skies, more blue and less red. One section can not and should not build upon the downfall of the other. More and more this fact is being recognized and appreciated. The blue grass needs the mountains and the mountains need the blue grass.

The chronic knocker, the unnecessary fault-finder, is an undesirable character in any community. He retards its progress; defames its name, and makes odious its climate with the slime and filth of his misrepresentations. His creed is not to do good, upbuild and elevate the standard of its citizenship, but it is to defame, malign, slander and tear down on the slightest of pretexts.

Often the mother of fault-finding is ill-will and envy and malice, fruits not very palatable, and not calculated to redound to the good of the community. We should ever keep in mind that we are brothers of one common humanity, and what tends to darken or destroy the life of one is a black blot on the horizon of the whole brotherhood of man. Friendly criticism, if judiciously used, is beneficial, but malicious accusations for the sake of notoriety, or the sake of creating a sensation, is more than words can express.

I admire the fellow who pleasure in boosting his home country if he can do so without slandering some other section. When he resorts to the abuse of some other man's native heath, he is to be pitied and despised as a despoiler and as a heartless ingrate.

I love every foot of Kentucky soil; the chivalrous and patriotic deeds of her soldiers and statesmen dead and living; the noble deeds of daring, love and devotion on the part of her women in peace and in war. I want to see Kentucky the grandest and the brightest in the galaxy of the Union of States; the hearts of her men made happy by the kisses of the noblest and fairest women beneath the sun-and I want to see the blessed mountains blossom as a rose with the glad smiles of prosperity and the blessed Blue Grass region become one perpetual haven of bliss, more and more the ideal Garden Spot of the world, and last, that some day I will have money enough to buy a number of fertile acres in the midst of this Garden Spot. This is the kind of love that animates me in every word of tongue or of pen for our "Old Kentucky Home."

Committee Meeting.

At a meeting of the Republican Legislative Committee of the 92nd Legislative District of Kentucky held in Jackson, Kentucky on July 9, 1907, for the purpose of fixing the time, place and manner of holding a convention for the purpose of nominating a Republican candidate for Representative in the Legislature from said district to be voted for at the November election, 1907, the following were present: W. L. May, Chairman of the Republican executive committee of Magoffin county, by proxy; H. L. Wheeler, Chairman of the Republican executive committee of Lee county by proxy and J. B. McLin, Chairman of the Republican executive committee of Breathitt county in person, the said named counties composing said district.

On motion duly made, J. B. McLin was made chairman of the meeting and Kelly Kash, secretary of the Republican executive committee of Breathitt county, was made secretary of the meeting.

The following business was transacted: It was ordered that the Chairman of the counties composing this district call county conventions to be held in the county seats of said counties on the third day of August, 1907, for the purpose of sending delegates to attend the Republican district convention to be held in Jackson, Ky., on August 8, 1907, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for said office. The said conventions are to be held viva voce, and counties composing said district are entitled to delegates as follows: Breathitt 8 votes; Lee 10 votes, and Magoffin 15 votes, as based on the presidential election of 1900, this basis being one vote for each one hundred Republican votes cast in said counties and one vote for each fraction thereof over fifty votes.

After passing said order, the committee adjourned. Given under our hands as chairman and secretary of said meeting this July 8, 1907.

J. B. McLin, Ch'm.
Kelly Kash, Sec'y.

The tax laws passed by the last legislature are so obnoxious that a Missouri woman applied to the court and obtained permission to remove about a half a million dollars worth of her trust funds from Lexington to Missouri. The Lexington Herald, a machine organ, is kicking up a lot of fuss about it. The way to remedy the evil is to vote for Willson and elect the Republican ticket this fall.

R. M. McQuinn and family, of McQuinn, and G. W. Whittaker and family, of Quicksand, left here last week for Oklahoma, where they expect to make their future home.

Esquire Riley, of Miller Branch, had a weed killing Saturday and a dance at night. During the festivities some dissatisfaction arose and several shots were fired, but fortunately no one was hurt.

Harrison McDaniel, of Miller Branch, in company with his most estimable wife, visited friends on Squabble creek Saturday night, with the expectation of meeting with her brother, Filmore McIntosh, and cousins, Anne McIntosh and Harry Sandlin, who have just returned home after a service of three years in the U. S. army.

The people of this vicinity have adopted an apostolic mode of business in part. They call no one common or unclean. They have the same regard for their neighbor's corn as they have for their own. For the past two weeks the Christian people have gone in a body from one farm to another with their weapons of warfare, leaving as much as ten acres per day in good condition.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Mme. Calve delights in shows of wild Indians. In New York she went for a ride in the stagecoach on its way to be held up.

The infant heir to the throne of Spain is being cared for by English nurses. The head nurse is a Miss Evans, and her assistant is Miss Alice Mary Bouting. Both are Roman Catholics.

Two New York society leaders, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney and Mrs. Herman B. Duryen, formed a partnership at one time and went into horse racing, registering in the Jockey club as "Mr. Roslyn." Too much publicity and heavy expense, however, have combined to induce their retirement from the turf as owners.

The Duchess of Roxburghe, formerly Miss Golet of New York, after spending about $1,000,000 in the repair and adornment of Floss Castle, has leased at an extravagant figure Lord Colebrooke's London mansion, where she is expected to entertain lavishly. Her grace is earning a reputation as one of the most lavish money spenders of the Anglo-American aristocracy.

The oldest living human being of authentic record is Mrs. Mary Wood of Hillsboro, Ore., a few miles west of Portland. Mrs. Wood is 120 years old. She was born in Knoxville, Tenn., May 20, 1787, which the records of Knoxville still show. When she was sixty-five years old she rode the entire distance across the continent from her old home in Tennessee to her present home in Oregon.

Picnic at Beech Grove.

L. H. Whitaker will be master of ceremonies at the picnic at Beech Grove, on the Heights, July 20. He says he will have all the amusements known to caterers on that day. He invites everybody to come out and enjoy themselves.

Curt Smith Killed.

Curt Smith was shot and killed Thursday evening by Sig Turner, near his home at the mouth of Cane Creek. Turner gave himself up to the jailer. The trouble, as we understand, came up over a game of cards. The examining trial has not been held yet, and as an attorney or two here have been in the habit of criticizing us for making comments, we will refrain from doing so till all the facts are before us.

Merry-go-Round Craze.

The merry-go-round craze has certainly struck Jackson. Wm. H. Combs, of Hazard, had set up a merry-go-round in Mrs. Arnett's yard Saturday, but before the people of the town had woken up to the real situation, James G. Bolin had erected a machine that met all the requirements. He exchanged same for one of the leading grocery stores in town. Gardner Plummer will whirl you around on Broadway till you are dizzy for five cents.

Union Services.

The union service Sunday night will be held in the Presbyterian church. Rev. W. W. Green, of the Methodist church, will preach. Special music will be rendered. Everybody most cordially invited to attend. These union services are being greatly enjoyed.

Blest be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love;
The fellowship of kindred minds,
Is like to that above.

The Hargis Trial.

W. B. Moody, of Eminence, was appointed last Friday Special Judge to try the Hargis cases. He went to Sandy Hook Tuesday and called the cases for trial. The Commonwealth was not ready for trial because it was not possible to have the witnesses summoned from Friday till Tuesday. The cases were therefore continued till next Monday to give both sides a chance to have their witnesses summoned before the court. The case against John Smith, we have understood, has been filed away.

Marriage Licenses.

The following marriage licenses have been issued since our last publication:

L. H. Mann and Mrs. Maxaline Stansfield, both of Jackson.
Wm. Strong, of Whick, and Miss Izona Tharp, of Lost Creek.
Wm. Childers and Miss Malettha Spencer, both of Filmore.
Goodloe Hensley, of Jackson, and Miss Elizabeth King, of Athol.
Alfred Collins, of Roosevelt, and Miss Elizabeth Morris, of Whick.

The Death Roll.

The four-year-old child of M. W. Carter, formerly of Jackson, but now of Campton, died suddenly at Winchester Sunday, where Mrs. Carter had gone to visit friends. M. F. Horton, of Campton, brother of Mrs. Carter, went to Winchester Monday to attend the funeral.

Mrs. Eugene Arnett, of Salyersville, died at the home of her sister, Mrs. H. W. Atkinson, at Harrodsburg, last Saturday, of consumption. She had been at Asheville, N. C., for some time for her health but to no avail. Everything was done for her that loving friends and money could do. She was the daughter, of Hon. D. D. Sublett, of Salyersville. Her remains were brought to Salyersville and interred in the family grave yard.

A Common Nuisance.

By way of suggestion, we would say it is one of the strangest things imaginable, why some people in Jackson who have cows and other cattle running at large, want to have bells on them. Possibly they may think that Jackson is an immense boundless pasture, and that unless the stock running at large is marked either by something visible or something audibly they will stray off and never return. Large bunches of cattle sometimes a dozen strong can be seen assembling in different portions of the city, especially on the Heights where buildings are scattering, and holding natines and rattling bells to the great discomfiture of the citizens. Let's take off the bells, both for the comfort of the people and to relieve the beleagured cattle of a useless burden.

An Elopement.

An elopement of two prominent young people of Stanton, Powell county, aided by friends in Lexington, culminated in a wedding Saturday night at the Windsor Hotel in Paris. The contracting parties were Abe Hall, a prosperous young merchant, and Miss Charlena Patrick, the pretty daughter of George Patrick, a well known commercial traveler, both of Stanton.

For some time the couple have been sweethearts, but their friends were not aware that their attachment had reached a matrimonial stage. Saturday Miss Patrick came to Lexington on the L. & E. train ostensibly to visit her friend, Miss Hallie Hancock. Mr. Hall followed on the afternoon train and the lovers met and an elopement was planned. They decided upon Paris as their Greta Green. They reached Paris at 10 o'clock and they were quietly married in the parlor of the Windsor Hotel. Rev. Carey E. Morgan, pastor of the Christian church of that city, performing the ceremony.—Lexington Leader.

Stories About The Authors Of Indiana.

By EDWARD HALE BRUSH.

BOOTH TARKINGTON.

THE state of Indiana has become so fertile as a literary field as to cause much comment upon the fact that other commonwealths are almost envious of the Hoosier State on account of its growing literary fame. Not content with producing a Lew Wallace, it also sent forth into the ranks of literature two very popular humorists, James Whitcomb Riley and the younger genius in making folks laugh, George Ade. It is the native state of Joaquin Miller and has produced Booth Tarkington, Charles Major, George Barr McCutcheon, Meredith Nicholson, Wilbur D. Nesbit and others whose literary stars are in the ascendant.

Indiana writers are noted for taking home scenes or types of character as subjects. This is especially true of Booth Tarkington, author of "The Gentleman From Indiana" and of "The Conquest of Canaan," the scenes of which are laid in the Hoosier State, others of his best known works are "Monsieur Beaucaire," "The Two Van Rensselaers," "Cherry," "In the Arena" and "The Beautiful Lady." Mr. Tarkington, who was born thirty-eight years ago in Indianapolis and who studied at Princeton, once said that he had no literary success until, after trying other lines, he struck Indiana subjects. While "The Gentleman From Indiana" was running in serial form the author received a great number of letters from people throughout the state who thought they saw in the first few numbers of the story evidences of disloyalty to Indiana. They advised Mr. Tarkington to go east, where he belonged, and called him everything from a snob to a traitor. Four county papers took up the same cry and flamed him with as much ardor as if he had been running for office.

"I really hardly knew what to think of it," said Mr. Tarkington. "It never occurred to me to be disloyal, and I was glad when the story was finished and they saw that they were mistaken."

Though Wilbur D. Nesbit, author of "The Trail to Boyland" and "The Gentleman Ragsman," was born in Xenia, O., he sprang into fame while a newspaper worker in Indiana, and much of his writing has been done while residing in the Hoosier State. He married an Indianapolis girl, Miss Mary Lee Jenkins. Mr. Nesbit is thirty-six and very boyish looking. One is astonished to learn that in his brief career he has written over 5,000 poems. Naturally enough, some of these effusions do not evince a high order of genius, but some of them have won popularity. There was a time when the only way he could turn his poetic talents to profit was by writing rhyming advertisements. One such effort was turned to the glorification of an array of straw hats in an Indianapolis dry goods store. As a writer of "ads." in prose Mr. Nesbit had not been much of a success. He was already facing the danger of being "fired" when this "poem" appeared.

"Who wrote that stuff?" demanded the proprietor of the store of the manager at the sight of the morning's profits. "Er—Nesbit. I told him I didn't think it was."

"Tell him to go ahead and write some more of the kind," broke in the proprietor, and thus out of a Hoosier dry goods store a poet was made.

George Barr McCutcheon has the good fortune to be a Hoosier born and bred, for he first saw the light on a farm in Tippecanoe county, Ind., in 1890 and was educated at the public schools of Lafayette and at Purdue university of the same place. He also worked on Lafayette papers during his early career as a writer. He is a brother of the cartoonist and illustrator John T. McCutcheon and is acknowledged a clever artist himself. The scene of "The Sherrods," which won a $25,000 premium from his publishers, is laid in Indiana and Illinois. Among his other works are "Castle Craneytown," "Gunslinger," "Brewster's Millions," "The Day of the Dog," "Nedra" and "Purple Parasol."

Joaquin Miller, the "Poet of the Sierras," is one of the brilliant galaxy of literary stars which has made the state of Indiana proud of itself because it gave them to the universe. He was born in Grant county, near Jalapa, in 1841, and, though that was close to three-score and ten years ago and the poet left Indiana with his parents for the Pacific coast when he was nine, he still has vivid memories of the days of his early youth in the Hoosier State. Mr. Miller proposes to visit his boyhood home on the occasion of his next birthday, which falls in August, and the people of the vicinity are going to give him a welcome at the time of his "homecoming."

Writing to George B. Lewis, editor of the Marion Chronicle, the poet recently said: "What I most of all things want to do is the old log home, which my revered parents built away back in the forties, and I want to see the beautiful river. I want to go fishing in it again. I want to go out to the old Miami village and see Jim Sasequas Shingles and his two bright boys. They made me feel like a boy again. The arrows had been, bright points, which they made out of an old barrel hoop with Jim's file. And they were perfect. As proof of this there is scarce a single buffalo left.

"I want to walk down the old dusty roadway state road. I want to go to Lafontaine bareheaded. I want to walk in the dust, with my pants rolled to my knees, just as of old. We can take some doughnuts in our pockets. Maybe we can steal a few apples from Bluebeard's pirates harbored along the creek. Anyhow I want to make a day of it. I want to be a boy back on the old place once more before I die. Come along and bring a lot of boys and girls, and let them all be 'kids' once more, not caring a bean whether school keeps or not."

Mr. Miller has recently avowed an intention to take up his residence in Oregon and run for the United States senate.

James Whitcomb Riley is Indiana's best known poet and humorist, and the public expects at least a touch of playfulness in his poetic effusions, but he can write serious verse, as was shown in the poem he read at the unveiling of the statue of General Henry W. Lawton in Indianapolis. It was entitled "The Home Voyage" and was composed in honor of General Lawton's memory when the body of the hero was being brought home from the Philippines.

Dr. Henry van Dyke in a recent article in the Book News Monthly thus discussed the personality of the Hoosier poet:

"Some men use their personality as an island. Others use it as a boat. It enables them to move around and see the world, and to be best of it. These last are the men of genius—which is one of the qualities of genius—and James Whitcomb Riley is a person of that kind. Speaking of boats, we are inevitably reminded of that famous comparison of old Thomas Fuller's, in which he imagines a will combat between Ben Jonson as a stately, shodder Spanish galleon, and William Shakespeare as a light, quick moving English man-of-war. If we modernized the figure, and set, let us say, Mr. Riley and Mr. Kipling afloat, what shapes would they give them? Perhaps the one would be a trading schooner, ready for adventures voyaging in strange seas, laden with all sorts of foreign and native wares, and redolent of eastern spices; and the other would be a native built canoe, framed for the exploration of familiar and friendly little rivers, journeying with ever new delight of discovery through the woodland and the farmstead of Indiana, stopping without fail at 'The Old Swimming Hole,' and trying up at night at some landing place along the Brandywine, within sight of a farmhouse, where William Leachman or Doc Sifers would be waiting for a good talk."

Charles Major, author of two of the most popular novels of the day, "When Knighthood Was in Flower" and "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," is also a native of Indiana. He was born in Indianapolis in 1856 and educated at the common schools of that city and of Shelbyville, where he now resides. He also studied at Michigan university. He married a Shelbyville belle, Miss Alice Shaw. In 1885, Mr. Major combined the practice of law with the writing of fiction. Among his stories, besides those mentioned, are "Bears of Blue River," "A Forest Heart" and "Volanda, Maid of Burgundy." At Shelbyville he shares honors as a prominent citizen with a big chicken grower, and that his genius is not unappreciated in his home town is shown by the remarks of a friend, who is quoted as saying:

"I have known Charles for thirty years, and I have never yet heard a bad word spoken against him. I never heard a man in this town say that Charles was not as straight as a string and one of the best fellows in the place. He ain't stuck up about his money, either. He is as liberal as you get 'em, and there ain't nobody in town that can say that they ever did anything for Charles Major that they didn't get paid for."

The Tight Name. Mr. August Starnes, the popular overseer of the poor, at Fort Madison, Ia., says: "Dr. King's New Life Pills, are rightly named; they act more agreeably, do more good and make one feel better than any other laxative." Guaranteed to cure biliousness and constipation 25c at Jackson Drug store.

First Rhine Steamboat. The first steamboat trip on the Rhine was made in 1816. The boat failed to reach its destination, Frankfurt, because of insufficient supply of fuel. It belonged to an English company, which applied to the government for a monopoly of Rhine navigation.

How to Cure Chills. "To enjoy freedom from chills," writes John Kemp, East Otisfield, Me., "I apply Bucklen's Arnica Salve. He also used it for salt rheum with excellent results." Guaranteed to cure fever, sore, indolent ulcers, piles, burns, wounds, frost bites and skin diseases. 50c at Jackson Drug store.

TRAIN AND TRACK.

The Transsiberian railway is 6,000 miles long and cost $484,500,000. A company has been organized for the purpose of constructing an electric line from Toledo to St. Louis. It will be the longest run of the kind.

There are thirty tunnels on English railways of a mile or more in length. The Severn tunnel, four and a half miles in length, is much the longest. At eight large stations on the government railroads in Japan tablets are hung up "to provide means of writing reminders for such of the passengers who have anything to communicate to their fellow travelers who do not arrive in time."

The Better Way. It is always best to know a person thoroughly before marrying him or her. This is an absolute preventive.—Judge.

An Expensive Find. Hard luck! I found a dollar bill in my last summer's suit. For joy I went and blew it in. With several more to boot. —Brooklyn Eagle.

TWO MINUTE SKETCHES

Marshall Field.

Dr. J. A. EDGERTON.

During office hours a disciplinarian; at other times almost a poet.

MARSHALL FIELD was the greatest merchant of modern times. He had factories all over the world, in almost every country of Europe, in China and Japan, in Australia and in North and South America. The goods manufactured by these mills he sold through his great retail store. He was one of the richest men in America, yet made far less stir than men with one-tenth of his wealth. Moreover, he paid taxes on a larger percentage of his possessions than probably any other American millionaire. He never speculated, never went in debt and never was out of business with his charities. The world over, his name was the synonym for business integrity. In fact, in giving the three essential qualities of the successful business man Mr. Field mentioned these:

"First—Absolute integrity. "Second—Good judgment. "Third—Perseverance."

Thousands of people before Marshall Field have stipulated these as necessary factors in success, but he put them in practice. He lived them.

Personally Field was rather tall, but spare. He was self-reliant almost to a fault. During office hours he was a strict disciplinarian; at other times almost a poet. Field was a poor boy, the son of a New England farmer. He early expressed a desire to become a merchant and his father secured him a clerkship in a village grocery. After the lapse of a few months the elder Field asked the merchant how the boy was making out and received a discouraging report. The storekeeper did not think young Field cut out for a business man. At this the boy doggedly determined that he would foot that particular purveyor of calves, and he did. Going to Chicago, he started as a clerk steadily crowded forward and was on the road to success at the time of the great fire of 1871. In this he lost practically all, but started again with a little added edge to his determination.

A cleansing, cooling, soothing, healing household remedy is DeWitt's Carbolized Witch Hazel Salve. For burns, cuts, scratches, bruises, insect bites, and sore feet it is unequalled. Good for piles. Beware of imitations. Get DeWitt's. It is the best. Sold by Jackson Drug Co.

Fine Writing. Charlotte Bronte's writing seemed to have been traced with a cambric needle, and Thackeray's writing, while marvelously neat and precise, was so small that the best of eyes were needed to read it.

Wise Counsel From the South. "I want to give some valuable advice to those who suffer with lame back and kidney trouble," says J. R. Blankenship, of Beck, Tenn. "I have proved to an absolute certainty that Electric Bitters will positively cure this distressing condition. The first bottle gave me great relief and after taking a few more bottles, I was completely cured; so completely that it became a pleasure to recommend this great remedy." Sold under guarantee at Jackson Drug store. Price 50c.

At the Seashore. Gerald—Weren't we engaged last year? Geraldine—I presume so, if you were here when I was.—Judge.

They All Believe It. One Bible truth there is in which girls have abiding trust. Our wives, especially, believe that man is made of dust. —Catholic Standard and Times.

When there is the slightest indication of indigestion heart burn, flatulence or any form of stomach trouble take a little Kodol occasionally and you will be afforded prompt relief. Kodol is a compound of vegetable acids and contains the juices found in a healthy stomach. Kodol digests what you eat, makes your food do you good. Sold by Jackson Drug Co.

Date Vinegar. Date vinegar has been made by the Arabs for ages.

Bartered Bees. Bees, according to an old superstition, must always be bartered. To sell them is considered most unlucky. Bartered bees are happy, but to be guilty of selling them is a grievous sin indeed than which nothing can be more dreadful.

Stimulation Without Irritation. That is the watchword. That is what O. K. Laxative Fruit Syrup does. Cleanses and stimulates the bowels without irritation in any form.

But Not to Be Walked On. Passenger—I am traveling on my face. Conductor—Well, it is certainly a plain road.—New York Press.

The Way It Goes. The auto horn goes honk-honk-honk. The engine rai-a-tai-tai. A piece of glass, and then, alas! The blamed old tire goes flat. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bad, sick headaches, biliousness, constipation are quickly relieved by DeWitt's Little Blue Pills. Small pills, sure pills, safe pills—prompt relief in action. Sold by Jackson Drug Co.

G. B. Burhans Testifies After Four Years.

G. B. Burhans, of Carlisle Center N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I wrote you stating that I had been entirely cured of severe kidney trouble by taking less than two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It entirely stopped the brick dust sediment, and pain and symptoms of kidney disease disappeared. I am glad to say that I have never had a return of any of those symptoms during the four years that have elapsed and I am evidently cured to stay cured, and heartily recommend Foley's Kidney Cure to any one suffering from kidney or bladder trouble. Sold by Jackson Drug Co."

George Barr McCutcheon has the good fortune to be a Hoosier born and bred, for he first saw the light on a farm in Tippecanoe county, Ind., in 1890 and was educated at the public schools of Lafayette and at Purdue university of the same place. He also worked on Lafayette papers during his early career as a writer. He is a brother of the cartoonist and illustrator John T. McCutcheon and is acknowledged a clever artist himself. The scene of "The Sherrods," which won a $25,000 premium from his publishers, is laid in Indiana and Illinois. Among his other works are "Castle Craneytown," "Gunslinger," "Brewster's Millions," "The Day of the Dog," "Nedra" and "Purple Parasol."
